It was formally announced during the American Probation and Parole Association's 32nd annual training institute held here in Philadelphia from July 8 through July 11, 2007, that the Philadelphia Youth Violence Reduction Partnership, is the recipient of the American Probation and Parole Association's President's national program award. The president of APPA's award recognizes programs that serve to advance the knowledge, effectiveness and integrity of the Community Corrections System. It will be formally presented at the opening session during the APPA winter training institute in Phoenix, Arizona in February, 2008.
